

Frequently Asked Questions

Getting Started

Every new relationship with Meridian begins with a free twenty-minute discovery call. There is no obligation attached to the call: it exists so a prospective client and a coach can confirm the fit is right before any payment changes hands.

Format and Scheduling

Meridian is a fully remote practice with no physical office. Sessions happen over video by default, with phone available on request. Coaches are available for scheduling Monday through Friday from eight in the morning to seven in the evening Eastern time, and Saturday from nine in the morning to one in the afternoon Eastern time. Meridian does not offer Sunday availability.

Individual sessions can be rescheduled at no charge with at least twenty-four hours of notice. A session cancelled with less than twenty-four hours of notice is forfeited.

Who Coaching Is For

Meridian works primarily with working professionals navigating a career transition, recovering from burnout, or facing a major life decision. Coaching is not a substitute for therapy or mental health treatment, and the intake process, including the Baseline Assessment, is used to screen for concerns that call for a referral to a licensed mental health professional instead.

Confidentiality

Session notes are stored encrypted and are never shared with a client's employer, even when that employer is the one paying for a corporate-sponsored package, except with the client's written consent or where disclosure is required by law.
